

Be chatterboxes!

Children love to talk and it's so good for them too! In fact, talking with your child is one of the most powerful activities you can do. Use a wide range of vocabulary and try to use the new words you have discovered when reading together. Talk about everything: experiences you can remember, what you see in the world around you and explanations of everyday activities, e.g. washing the dishes or cooking dinner. All of this talk helps children to explore and understand language and can have a really positive impact on their writing.

Be storytellers!

Photographs, objects and images are a great way to stimulate memory and imagination. Explore your home, looking for photographs or objects that trigger memories. A pair of special shoes, photos of a family day out or a precious gift can be a great way to tell a story. Tell your own stories/memories to your child and let them tell theirs to you.

Handwriting

In Year 3, your child will start developing fluent handwriting skills, making their writing more consistent and easier to read. This includes:

- joining letters whenever appropriate
- making sure that letters look consistent throughout writing
- keeping the spacing between lines of writing parallel and consistent.

Talking for Writing

Encourage your child to talk about, or say out loud, what they are going to write. This helps them to prepare for writing.

What are you going to write about?

Can you say the sentence aloud before you write it down?

Can you read aloud what you have written?

Check and progress

A great way to help your child to improve their writing is to encourage them to read aloud what they have written. Can they spot any missed punctuation? Can they spot any spelling errors?

How can you motivate your child to write?

- Make sure your child knows their work doesn't have to be perfect first time. They can go back and make improvements later.
- Share your own writing. Let your child see you writing. Whether it be a postcard to a family member, a journal entry or text messages, let your child know you're using your writing skills for real purpose.
- Encourage your child to write about their interests and hobbies.

Writing checklist:

Is your child using capital letters, full stops and question and exclamation marks in the right place?

Is your child joining their letters carefully?

Is your child using tense correctly throughout their writing?

Can your child use adjectives for descriptions?

Can your child read aloud what they have written?

Can your child spell these tricky words?

door, floor, poor, because, find, kind, mind, behind, child, children, wild, climb, most, only, both, old, cold, gold, hold, told, every, everybody, even, great, break, steak, pretty, beautiful, after, fast, last, past, father, class, grass, pass, plant, path, bath, hour, move, prove, improve, sure, sugar, eye, could, should, would, who, whole, any, many, clothes, busy, people, water, again, half, money, Mr, Mrs, parents, Christmas

Can your child tell you what these words are/mean?

Apostrophe:	A punctuation mark with two different uses: e.g. can't and Lucy's. '
Comma:	A punctuation mark that shows a pause or separates items in a list. ,

Other ways you can make a big difference

Look for opportunities to give your child some real-life reasons to write. Try these ideas:

- Write a lockdown letter to cheer up a family member, a friend or a neighbour. Post it together. You might even start a pen pal tradition! You could include artwork too if this is something your child enjoys doing.
- Is there an issue your child cares passionately about? Encourage them to write to a local MP or business to see whether they can create change. This kind of writing can make big differences in the community.
- Work together to send a tweet to their favourite author. Many authors are now on twitter and love to engage with their readers. What would your child like to ask their favourite author?
- Your child might like to write the book of a film or TV programme for younger children to read. If children have watched something they've really enjoyed, they could try and tell the same story in writing. Watching the story on screen can give them a really great starting point to get going with.
- If you've had a recent visit to a park or outdoor space (or museums, libraries in the future) that you have enjoyed with your child, help them to add a review on <https://www.tripadvisor.co.uk/>. Having a real audience who will read their review will often motivate children to write.
- Write book reviews for books your child has read. <https://www.lovereadings4kids.co.uk/> is a great website for this.
- Could your child start a blog around their own interest?

Important Information

Some of the units and genres we cover in Year 3 are:

Fiction - stories with familiar settings, myths, mystery stories, adventure stories and playscripts.

Non-fiction- report writing, instruction texts and information texts.

Poetry - performance poetry, calligrams and language play.

- It is imperative that your child is using capital letters and basic punctuation appropriately when constructing a sentence. A capital letter must be used to start every sentence as well as to identify proper nouns; such as the names of people, places, days of the week and months of the year. A sentence must be demarcated with one of either a full stop, question mark or exclamation mark depending upon relevance. Your child may also start to experiment with other forms of punctuation like commas and apostrophes. Children can sometimes struggle to demarcate sentences as they increase the detail and amount they're writing, so a useful tip to help them with this is to tell them that they shouldn't be writing more than 2 lines without including a full stop.
- When writing extended pieces of text, your child should look to organise their work into paragraphs. At this point in the development of their writing, a paragraph should be approximately 4-10 sentences that evolve around the same point, theme or event. Children can often become focused on writing lots without remembering the importance of sentence structure, so it is important for them to re-read every paragraph once they feel they have finished and check that they have included at least 4 full stops/question marks/exclamation marks before moving to their next paragraph.
- When describing a particular person or object, your child should be encouraged to experiment and be creative with their use of expanded noun phrases. For example; rather than writing The man sat down in his chair, children should attempt to describe the nouns within the sentence in more precise detail. This could be something like The tired, old man sat down in his favourite, comfy chair or The rich, young man sat down in his expensive, leather chair. The use of adjectives before the nouns allows the writer to more clearly describe the subject and article within the sentence.
- Editing and self-evaluation is an important skill for your child to develop. Encourage your child to immediately re-read every sentence and every paragraph once they have finished writing them. This will help them to identify any mistakes or opportunities to improve their writing whilst they are in process. Your child will always have opportunities to improve their writing so encouraging them to take ownership of this, rather than relying solely upon adult direction, is an important step in their progression as a writer.
